

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a mailbox information table, respective processing is registered in a way to correspond to each subaddress of an F code. Image data of a facsimile with an attached F code containing a subaddress registered in the information table is stored in a corresponding mailbox in a mailbox group. A special mailbox table stores a processing corresponding to a facsimile with an attached F code having a subaddress not registered in the information table. If the subaddress in the attached F code of a received facsimile is not registered in the information table, the image data of that facsimile is stored in a special mailbox. After this, the processing which is registered for the special mailbox is performed.
